Organizing your Study Abroad

- Research the websites of partner universities to decide your first preferences regarding countries and cities for your study abroad. It is especially important to review the course offerings at your intended foreign university!
- After you have researched your options sufficiently, contact the local ERASMUS+ program representative at FAU. Explain to the program representative why you want to study abroad and at which foreign university.
- After a successful nomination by the program representative, you will be contacted by the Central Office for International Affairs regarding additional formalities related to your ERASMUS+ scholarship (no separate application is necessary) and the organization of your international study stay.
- 4. If applicable, you may be asked by the program representative to contact the partner university. When establishing this contact, it is important to specify your intended area of study at the host university (contents of studies / lectures / participation in research projects) as well as any existing language proficiencies and the current status of your own study program.
- You will receive, either from the program representative or from the Central Office for International Affairs, information regarding your registration (procedures, deadlines) at the host university.
- You must register at the host university by the given registration deadline.
- Please clarify any questions regarding your living accommodations either immediately after or together with the registration at the host university. If applicable, apply for a room in any student housing offered by your host university.
- Before your leave for your host country, please discuss recognition of credits with the appropriate responsible parties in your faculty. In case your imternationally attained credits can be recognized in your faculty, a Learning Agreement is required.
- During your international study stay, the program representatives in your faculty are available to you for questions related to your area of study, and the Central Office for International Affairs is available to you for any administrative inquiries.
- 10. At the end of your international study stay, we happily await your re-enrollment and a report of your experiences!

You can find further information on the website of the Central Office for International Affairs (RIA): https://www.fau.de/education/international/wege-ins-ausland/studieren-im-ausland/
